Fisher Phillips Featured in Los Angeles Times' Labor & Employment Panel Discussion

News
4.26.21

The Los Angeles Times interviewed Todd Scherwin, Regional Managing Partner of Fisher Phillips' Los Angeles and Woodland Hills offices, for a Q&A panel discussion on the current state of labor and employment legislation, new rules of hiring and firing in the wake of the pandemic crisis and various trends leading labor and employment attorneys have observed in 2020. During the interview, Todd touches on why employers need to keep their eye on the continued rise in litigation, particularly PAGA claims in California, and wage-hour compliance issues. He also provides insight on how employers can navigate legal challenges related to furloughs and layoffs due to COVID-19, modifications employers should be making to workplace policies in light of COVID-19 and trends related to arbitration agreements in the employment context.

To read the article visit Los Angeles Times.

Please reach out to our Media team for any news inquiries.

Related People

Todd B. Scherwin
Regional Managing Partner
213.330.4450
Email

Copyright © 2024 Fisher Phillips LLP. All Rights Reserved.

Service Focus

California Litigation and Appellate

Trending

COVID-19/Vaccine Resource Center

Related Offices

Los Angeles

Woodland Hills

Copyright © 2024 Fisher Phillips LLP. All Rights Reserved.