

Web Exclusive: Bridging the App

Insights

7.01.16

Contemporary technological developments could help increase the number of individuals with disabilities in the workforce to an even greater extent over the next several years. A growing number of phone and computer apps, available for purchase with a simple tap, are specifically designed with access needs in mind. The proliferation of such apps is sure to have an impact on requests for reasonable accommodations under the ADA. Click here to read the article, “Bridging The App: Apps That Aid Individuals With Disabilities Enter The Workplace” to learn how this development might impact your business.