	QUESTION	ANSWER
Q&A-1	Regarding gag clause saying a pharmacy can't tell patient it is cheaper not to use insurance. Can they share that info if the patient is the one asking the question instead of the pharmacy volunteering that info?	This is an area of the law beyond our expertise and would also depend on the terms of the agreement. We suspect the answer is that they can share it in response to a direct question, but cannot volunteer the information.
