Law Students

Summer Program

At Fisher Phillips, our summer program is designed to give you a realistic view of what it is like to practice as a first-year attorney at our firm. We challenge you with meaningful work assignments that reflect the breadth and the depth of labor and employment law. We do not use a formal rotation program. Instead, we encourage you to explore what interests you by choosing your own work assignments from a database of available projects.

We also recognize that training is essential to your success as a summer clerk. In addition to the one-on-one training you receive while working alongside our attorneys, we offer formal training programs that will help you learn the skills you need to succeed at Fisher Phillips. Our clerks also have many opportunities to observe court appearances, depositions, client meetings and mediations. Each summer clerk is assigned an associate mentor who serves as a resource throughout the summer program.

Our summer program is not all about work. We also host a variety of social events to give you the opportunity to meet us outside of the office. Past events have included wine tastings, dinner parties at partners’ homes, impromptu happy hours, museum tours, sports outings, and community service events.

Entry Level Associates

Fisher Phillips visits a number of law schools to interview and recruit third-year law students for entry-level associate positions in our Columbia, Irvine, Los Angeles, San Diego, and San Francisco offices as our staffing needs dictate. We do not accept applications for entry-level positions for any of our other offices.

FAQ

What characteristics does Fisher Phillips look for in a law student?

We seek students from diverse backgrounds who are mature, self-motivated, confident, and hardworking. Strong analytical and writing skills are essential, as are creativity, superior academic credentials and a genuine interest in the practice of labor and employment law. Prior human resources or management experience is helpful, but not required.

How do I apply for a summer associate or entry-level position?

Fisher Phillips interviews second and third-year law students on campus at select schools and job fairs each year. If we do not visit your campus, we will begin accepting applications for 2019 summer clerk and entry-level associate positions in July. Please check our Open Positions page for more information.

How long is your summer program?

Our summer program is a maximum of ten weeks. The actual start and end dates vary from office to office.

Are summer clerks allowed to split with another firm?

Absolutely. We recognize that you may be curious about other practice areas, so we encourage all of our summer clerks to split their summer with another firm to fully explore their interests. After the summer, if you want to focus on labor and employment law, we’re confident that you will want to join our firm.

How does Fisher Phillips view judicial clerkships?

We encourage applications from judicial clerks and provide credit for clerkships for compensation and seniority purposes on a case by case basis.

WHAT OUR LAWYERS HAVE TO SAY

David Roth, Associate, Denver Office

Coming off a judicial clerkship, I wanted to find a firm that would afford me the opportunity to develop further a deep and substantive knowledge of the law. Fisher Phillips has not disappointed. I have had the opportunity to research and analyze novel and dynamic legal issues, and I have been able to apply my efforts to benefit the firm’s clients. If you desire to be a top-tier labor & employment lawyer, as I do, then Fisher Phillips can certainly facilitate that goal.
Jack Stapleton, Associate, Atlanta Office

As a summer clerk at Fisher Phillips, I worked on assignments in a variety of practice areas, from wage and hour to immigration, and from discrimination to restrictive covenants. In addition to shadowing attorneys at hearings and depositions, I was given challenging assignments and responsibility, including drafting a post-hearing arbitration brief in a contract interpretation matter. Through feedback on work assignments, daily lunches, and weekly social gatherings, it was clear early on that the associates and partners in the firm had a genuine interest in getting to know me and aiding in my development as a lawyer. My summer experience left no doubt in my mind that Fisher Phillips was the right place for me. The relationships and work experience I gained as a summer clerk allowed for a seamless transition into my role as a first-year associate.

Sharlene Koonce, Associate, San Diego Office

I began my legal career with Fisher Phillips. It has been a remarkable, fulfilling experience. I was initially drawn and have stayed with this firm because of its culture and people. Fisher Phillips promotes a positive work environment that fosters collaboration among all attorneys, cutting edge legal practice, and true professional growth for all its lawyers. Fisher Phillips will teach you how to think critically about substantive labor and employment issues; how to bring value to the firm’s clients; and how to build and maintain a solid book of business. If you are looking for opportunity and guidance, look at Fisher Phillips.
