ATLANTA, GA (June 5, 2013) – The three-member Management Committee of Fisher Phillips , has re-elected Roger K. Quillen to serve as its Chairman and the firm’s Managing Partner.

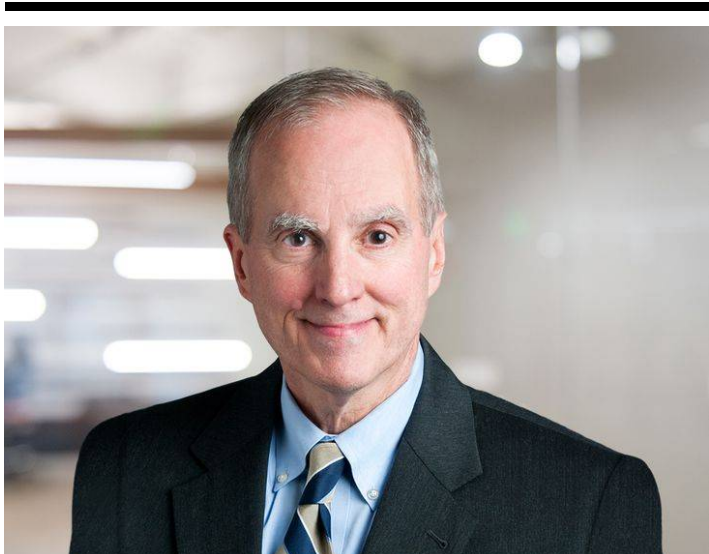

Quillen has served on the Management Committee continuously since 1997 and has been the firm’s Chairman and Managing Partner since 1999. He joined the firm in 1980. Management Committee members are elected to serve three-year terms.

The Management Committee serves as a board of directors for the 31-office labor and employment law firm. Each committee member is elected to a three year term in staggered elections.

“We are experiencing an exciting period of growth at Fisher Phillips,” Quillen said. “The commitment our attorneys and staff have to providing excellent client service helps to foster the confidence our clients continue to show in our firm. It is an honor to work with such talented and dedicated people who share a collegial approach to practicing labor and employment law across the country.”
