Partner Sheldon Blumling was featured in the Las Vegas Business Press on Nov. 30, 2013.

The article states that the Affordable Care Act may be the law of the land, but that's not stopping Las Vegans from trying to get around it.

From renewing insurance before it expires to breaking up businesses and even families, locals are weighing some unusual options to escape provisions of the law.

Sheldon said a fair number of employers are now offering skinny plans, which significantly cut back on coverage.

"They may offer some basic preventive care, but little else beyond that. Some skinny policies don't even pay for hospital stays or surgery," said Sheldon.
