An article by Howard Mavity entitled "Wash Your Hands! Employers And The Flu," was featured in Converge, a publication of HospitalityLawyer.com.

Howard explained Almost 4.1 million employees missed work due to illness last January, which was the most since 2008. Even worse, the four-month peak season lasted through March, so the numbers continued to add up.

Howard suggested developing more flexible leave policies and take other steps to ensure that sick employees stay home and do not infect others.
