Michael offered insight on the use of social media among young lawyers.

The use of social media has exploded over the past five years. A large number of lawyers have jumped on the proverbial social media bandwagon and are using these websites both as highly effective marketing tools and as a way to stay connected with friends, family, colleagues and others.

Unfortunately for the unwary employee, including young lawyers, the use of social media can give rise to myriad workplace issues. Seemingly innocuous conduct on social media can quickly endanger a young lawyer's job.
