An article by Mike Greco was published on TLNT.

Mike's article entitled "Send A Non-Compete Letter And You May Be Buying a Lawsuit," was published on January 28, 2014.

Mike wrote that nearly every judge begins an injunctive hearing with the same question: What efforts did you make to resolve this matter?

Judges encourage settlement and they encourage compromise, according to Mike. Even if such compromise is not possible, they want to know an earnest effort was made.

In order to get the settlement ball rolling, parties need to start somewhere, Mike wrote. They need to stake out positions, and this cannot happen without communication.
