The article entitled "Volkswagen Tennessee Workers To Vote On UAW Feb. 12-14," was published on February 3, 2014.

A vote on whether workers at Volkswagen AG's Tennessee plant wish to be represented by the United Auto Workers will begin on February 12.

A secret-ballot election will be conducted by the National Labor Relations Board.

"A vote at Volkswagen, whatever the outcome, will send reverberations throughout the Southern auto industry," said Dennis.

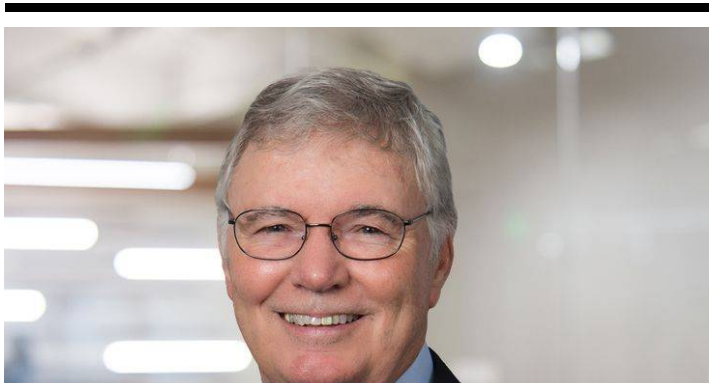

The UAW has also been attempting to represent workers at Nissan Motor Co plants in Mississippi and Tennessee, and at a Daimler AG Mercedes-Benz plant in Alabama, according to the article.
