

Workplace Romance Can Create HR Headaches

News

2.14.14

Michelle Anderson was featured in the New Orleans City Business article entitled “Workplace Romance Can Create HR Headaches.”

Many attorneys agree that there is no way for employers to legally stamp out romantic relationships in the workplace.

Michelle explained that more than half of the relationships go unnoticed, particularly in industries that recruit older employees.

“Romantic encounters only become a problem when those relationships are troubled and the fall-out impacts the work setting,” she said.

Industries that attract younger employees, such as hospitality and tourism, often have a higher incidence of cases stemming from troubled relationships, Michelle explained.

Subscribers can read more here.

Please reach out to our Media team for any news inquiries.