An article quoting Diana Hawkins entitled “Five Tips For Employers To Avoid SOX Whistleblower Suits,” was featured in Law360.

The article focused on what private companies should do in light of the high court's decision.

“The first step in assessing how to react to the Lawson decision is determining whether your company may be found to have a relationship with a public company that gives rise to potential liability under SOX's retaliation ban,” said Diana.

“Know who you are doing business with, and determine whether your company is now subject to SOX's anti-retaliation provisions,” she suggested.
