Scott Schneider was quoted on CBS News on March 23, 2015. The article “For Colleges, Fraternity Woes Can Cost Big Bucks” discussed how whether the issue is sexual harassment and assault, racism, hazing and bullying, or even accidents from drinking, such incidents raise numerous moral, ethical and social issues for the public. Universities and colleges have an additional aspect they must consider: business.

Scott was quoted on whether or not colleges should keep frats.

"Why are we in the business of Greek life?" said Scott. "I'm asking myself two questions: Can I control this, as an institution, and, if I can't, why are we involved in this process?"
