

What a New Equal Pay Law in Massachusetts Could Do for Everyone, Not Just Women

News

8.04.16

The article, "What a New Equal Pay Law in Massachusetts Could Do for Everyone, Not Just Women," featured in The Washington Post, highlights a new bill, signed into law by Gov. Charlie Baker, requiring men and women to be paid equally for comparable work in Massachusetts.

Of course, it's important to note that the new law does not prevent people from volunteering their salary history. And as written, the law doesn't appear to keep employers from asking candidates about a desired salary range. Many employers who want to know what it will take to hire someone "will find other ways to get the information they're looking for."

To read the full article, please visit The Washington Post.

Please reach out to our Media team for any news inquiries.

Service Focus

Pay Equity and Transparency