

Trump Win Puts Labor Regulations on Life Support

News

11.09.16

The article, “Trump Win Puts Labor Regulations on Life Support,” featured in Bloomberg BNA, discussed how the lengthy list of workplace regulations finalized in the past year are now in jeopardy, in light of Donald Trump’s victory.

Ed Foulke discussed how the Occupational Safety and Health Administration’s (OSHA) regulations are up for review under Trump’s administration.

OSHA has regulations, all recently enacted, for silica, drug testing, incentive programs and record keeping that the Trump administration may review, said former agency administrator Edwin Foulke.

Ed is an attorney with Fisher Phillips in Atlanta who served in the second term of the Bush administration.

The first OSHA policies likely to come under scrutiny are various directives and interpretations the agency issued during the Obama administration, Ed told Bloomberg BNA Nov. 9.

To read the full article, please visit Bloomberg BNA.

Please reach out to our Media team for any news inquiries.

Related People

Edwin G. Foulke, Jr.

Partner

404.240.4273

Email