

Will Trump's Immigration Audits Help U.S. Workers?

News

12.05.16

In the article, "Will Trump's Immigration Audits Help U.S. Workers?," featured in Bloomberg BNA, Partner David Jones provided insight into Trump's immigration plans and the impact on U.S. workers.

Trump is planning on directing the Labor Department to investigate visa program abuse.

DOL investigations are "all about the wages," David told Bloomberg BNA. In other words, are employers paying foreign workers what the law requires.

This is particularly true in the context of H-1B visas, temporary visas for skilled foreign workers that are popular in the tech industry. The H-1B program requires employers to attest that they're paying the required wage and that hiring a foreign worker won't adversely affect U.S. workers' wages, Jones said.

To read the full article, visit Bloomberg BNA.

Please reach out to our Media team for any news inquiries.

Related People

David S. Jones
Regional Managing Partner

Regional Managing Partner
901.526.0431
Email

Service Focus

Immigration