

Surveying the Class-Action Landscape

News

2.02.17

In the article, "Surveying the Class-Action Landscape," featured on Human Resources Executive, attorney Lori Armstrong Halber discusses key factors in the wage and hour landscape after settlement values skyrocketed in 2016.

"You have a plaintiff's bar seizing on this fertile ground for litigation and a more educated population looking at their paycheck in a different way," says Halber. "So it doesn't surprise me [that] you would see a spike in that area of litigation, which coincidentally would likely lead to an increase of settlements in that area of law."

To read the full article, please visit Human Resources Executive.

Please reach out to our Media team for any news inquiries.