In the article, "How These 3 Bills Could Make It Much Harder to Hire Foreign Workers," featured in Fortune, Attorney Kim Thompson comments on three bills pending in Congress that are taking aim at the H-1B visa program and how it may effect startups and small businesses that depend on skilled foreign workers.

"My concern is that H-1Bs will go to places like Silicon Valley or New York, and that small employers in different areas may be frozen out," says Kim Thompson, a partner at Fisher Phillips, a law firm based in Atlanta.
