In the article, "How To Use Duty Of Care To Gain More Clients," featured in LCT, Attorney Lauren Cell provides commentary on the precautions corporate travel managers must take when allowing their employees to use TNCs.

Lauren noted that employers must act in a prudent and cautious manner to avoid foreseeable employee injury. "It's not just the potential for employees to file a negligence lawsuit costing possibly millions of dollars if they were sent to a high-risk region and an incident occurred, but also your company's reputation can be [forever] tarnished."
