In the article, "Tampa employment law firm gets new regional managing partner," the Tampa Bay Business Journal reported on the planned tri-annual transition of Regional Managing Partners in the Tampa office from Steve Bernstein to Christine Howard. In this article, Howard described a few ways in which she aspires to elicit firm growth under her leadership for the next 3 years.

Her most immediate aim is to have the firm's lawyers become more engaged in the Tampa community.

"We've done a good job through various activities and events but I would like to enhance our ability to work with more locally based clients," she said. Although Fisher Phillips was founded in the 1940s and has been in Tampa for a decade, Howard thinks there is room for the firm to grow. "We have a very solid local client base but we are still somewhat new to the Tampa market."
