Fisher Phillips is honored to be recognized as a U.S. firm that is implementing best practices in retaining and promoting women lawyers and fostering environments committed to achieving that success.

In the article, "Program Helps Law Firms See Progress in Gender Diversity—But is it Enough?", the ABA Journal reported on Working Mother Media's Best Law Firms for Women initiative in which Fisher Phillips was ranked 5th in its grouping.

"One of the things I've been struck by in my work on the initiative this year is the value law firms attach to being involved," says Karen Kaplowitz, a former trial lawyer and special adviser to the Best Law Firms initiative. "They've told us how important it is to the law firms that they get on this list and that they stay on this list. It has real value to them in their diversity and inclusion efforts—including recruiting law students and laterals."
