

California Attorney Comments on California Becoming Fertile Ground for Employment Lawyers

News

4.06.18

In the Big Law Business article, “California Is Fertile Ground for Employment Lawyers,” John Polson of the Irvine office comments on the increased demand for labor and employment practices in California due to new employment laws, salary history ban and class action litigation.

“The class action practice in California is really growing for us,” John said. “That’s being fueled by court decisions that essentially change the rules after the fact on employers.”
