

Fisher Phillips Attorney Discusses Flurry of New California Employment Laws with Law.com

News

10.04.18

In a recent interview with Law.com, California attorney Ben Ebbink explained that protecting workers from sexual harassment was the impetus behind a new flurry of laws passed in California. In terms of whether other states will follow California's lead, Ebbink said: "California does lead on these issues. States look to California. You could see them replicate. In general, California is the tail that wags the dog. People in other states do need to look because it's a bellwether of the trends that will sweep across the country."
