

Atlanta Attorney Discusses Department of Labor's Proposed Joint Employer Rule

News
4.01.19

The Department of Labor has proposed a new joint employer rule that would align with the rule of the National Labor Relations Board, narrowing the definition of a joint employer and limiting a business's employment law liability. Attorney Marty Heller spoke with reporters at SHRM and Law360 about the impetus behind the rule change. He says, "The proposed test aligns with a more modern view of the workplace. The test is a modified version of the standard that some federal courts already apply."

To read the full articles visit, SHRM and Law360.

Please reach out to our Media team for any news inquiries.

Related People

Marty Heller
Partner
404.231.1400
Email

Related Offices

Atlanta