Jun 6, 2019

SAN DIEGO (June 6, 2019) – Regina Petty, Chief Diversity Officer and partner at Fisher Phillips, was named to Lawyer of Color's Inaugural Nation's Best list. The 2019 list, presented by Major, Lindsay & Africa with the support of the Diverse Partners Network, recognizes exceptional law firm partners and senior-level corporate counsel who have achieved prominence and distinction in their fields and demonstrated a strong commitment to advancing diversity in the legal profession. Regina is the only honoree from the nation's top labor and employment firms listed in the Western Region of the Nation's Best list.

As Chief Diversity Officer, Regina provides leadership, vision and strategic direction to advance the diversity and inclusion values of Fisher Phillips to achieve professional and organizational excellence. She engages with every single one of the firm's attorneys and staff on diversity and inclusion efforts in order to enhance a firm-wide culture and atmosphere that is welcoming and open to everyone.

In her legal practice, Regina represents clients before state and federal courts throughout the country at the trial and appellate court levels. She advises private and public employers on their most pressing workplace issues. Regina successfully argued Jones v. The Lodge at Torrey Pines Partnership (2008) 42 Cal.4th 1158 before the California Supreme Court, a case noted on Bender's California Labor & Employment Bulletin's top ten list of most significant cases and trends for the Fair Employment and Housing Act's (FEHA) 50th anniversary.
