Some companies are starting to experiment with interviewing job candidates via text. Attorney Erin Price talked to Legaltech News about the risks and rewards. In the interview, she likened the practice to Skype interviews. Specifically, she said: “I think texting is similar in that employers are interested, they’re curious about the benefits that it appears to provide,” Price said. “[But] it’s hard to really jump into a trend and not be certain about the effects that it could have.”
