

Orlando Attorney Provides Tips on Managing Politics in the Office

News

11.27.19

Orlando attorney Justin McConnell spoke with the Orlando Business Journal on best practices employers should consider to keep a healthy, functioning work environment when political conversations enter the workplace. According to Justin, it's not a matter of if political conversations will infiltrate the workplace. Rather, it's when and how. He suggests having policies in place that give and provide a goal post for what's permissible at work. "Now's a great time to go back to employee handbooks and policy manuals that have been collecting dust for the last three years," Justin says.

To read the full article, visit Orlando Business Journal (subscription required).

Please reach out to our Media team for any news inquiries.

Related Offices

Orlando