

Advice for Employers Confronting the Coronavirus

News

1.31.20

In an interview with EHS Today, partner Howard Mavity describes what steps employers can take to protect their workplace against the coronavirus. He explains that safeguards against the coronavirus are not all that different from safeguards employers would take to prevent the flu. He notes that “[p]erhaps the most important message is to stay home if sick,” and he goes on to provide advice on other things managers can do to help protect their workforce.
