

Telework Becomes “New Normal” Amid Pandemic – What Employers Need to Know

News
3.13.20

As public health officials continue to encourage social distancing many employers are doing their part by implementing telework options. In an interview with Law360, Emily Litzinger discusses what employers need to know when employees start working from home, and she emphasizes that “the first step is setting clear expectations” with a comprehensive work-from-home-policy. Emily goes on to highlight other considerations for employers when implementing telework options, including how different arrangements might impact nonexempt and exempt employees.

To read the article, visit Law360 (subscription required).

Please reach out to our Media team for any news inquiries.

Related People

Emily N. Litzinger
Partner
502.561.3978
Email