

Charlotte Partner Comments on Managing Truck Drivers Showing COVID-19 Symptoms

News
3.25.20

Charlotte Partner Travis Vance recently spoke with Commercial Carrier Journal regarding the logistics surrounding truck drivers reporting symptoms of, or testing positive for, COVID-19 while on the road. Travis encourages fleets to get drivers – if they are showing symptoms – home and out of the truck as soon as possible to avoid interaction with customers and cargo.

On the topic of notifying anyone an infected driver may have interacted with, Travis says there is not much legal guidance, but err on the side of transparency. “It’s kind of uncharted territory. But it’s about doing the right thing,” he said.

To read the full article, visit Commercial Carrier Journal.

Please reach out to our Media team for any news inquiries.

Related People

Travis W. Vance
Regional Managing Partner
704.778.4164
Email

Service Focus

Workplace Safety and Catastrophe Management

Related Offices

Charlotte