

Law.com Looks to Workplace Safety Co-Chair to Provide Guidance for Employers Amid Civil Unrest

News

6.02.20

In an interview with Corporate Counsel, Workplace Safety Co-Chair Todd Logsdon provides valuable insights for employers operating during times of civil unrest. Todd explained that employers must make worker safety a top priority, and he reminds companies that the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) has a general duty clause mandating that “employers have to provide a safe workplace which is free from recognized hazards.” In the article he says that “[i]f a retail establishment is in the area where they know a protest is going to take place it is important to shut down before that happens.”

To read the article, visit Corporate Counsel (subscription required).

Please reach out to our Media team for any news inquiries.

Related People

Todd B. Logsdon

Partner

502.561.3971

Email

Service Focus

Workplace Safety and Catastrophe Management