

The New Normal for Law Firms in a Post-Pandemic World

Publication

7.28.20

In an article published by Columbus Bar's Lawyers Quarterly, Regional Managing Partner Steve Loewengart discusses how the pandemic has had – and will continue to have – a lasting impact on the business of law. He explains that law firms have felt the impact in many forms, including disrupted work flows, salary cuts, and moving to digital platforms for just about every necessary function. Steve explains that although the idea of “normal” may never be the same, “...the law firms that have adjusted, demonstrated agility and can offer diverse legal services will continue to thrive.”
