

Insurance Journal Publishes Lawyer's Article on Employers Facing an Increase in COVID-19 Wrongful Death Lawsuits

Publication

8.27.20

In a bylined article published by Insurance Journal, Chantell Foley discusses the fact that the rising number of COVID-19 cases and deaths has increased the number of lawsuits being filed against employers. She describes that an increasing number of families of employees who died from COVID-19 have asserted wrongful death actions against employers for failing to keep their family members safe while at work. Chantell's article explains employers can learn from these lawsuits to not only keep their workers safe but avoid being on the receiving end of such a claim.
