

Manufacturers Should Prepare for a Return to More Aggressive Regulation and Employee-Friendly Legislation under the Biden Administration

Publication

12.08.20

In a bylined article published by the Kentucky Association of Manufacturers, Chantell Foley discusses several changes manufacturing employers might expect under the Biden administration and provides tips for how they can prepare for such changes. Her take home message is that “[m]anufacturing employers should start preparing for a future legal and regulatory environment that is more focused on the expectations of their employees’ safety concerns, leave, and equal pay, to name a few.”
