

Could OSHA Actually Shut Down a Violent Donald Trump Rally?

Publication

3.16.16

Travis Vance's Workplace Safety and Health Law Blog post, "Could OSHA Actually Shut Down a Violent Donald Trump Rally?" was picked up by TLNT on March 16, 2016.

An otherwise entertaining and unique election cycle took a violent turn Friday night.

Angry protestors stormed a planned Donald Trump rally at a convention center in Chicago, inciting violence among attendees with several insults yelled and many punches thrown. The protesting spilled over into the street outside the arena, where many protestors were restrained by police for violent behavior.

Fearing for the safety of his campaign workers and supporters under these circumstances, Trump cancelled the event.

To read the full article, please visit TLNT.

Related People

Travis W. Vance
Regional Managing Partner
704.778.4164
Email

