In the article, “Five Tips for Managing Politics in the Workplace,” featured in the Orlando Business Journal, Partner Jeff Mandel provides five tips for effectively managing discussions about politics in the workplace:

1. As you hear rumblings about the upcoming election and the oft-contentious issues that come up as a result, clearly communicate to employees the company’s expectation that everyone in the workplace conduct themselves in a professional, respectful manner.
2. Remain neutral and comply with state laws.
3. Focus on action.
4. Ensure that office policies and procedures are being enforced consistently across the board.
5. Avoid criticism or jokes.
