

What Employers Need to Know in the New Era of Employee Protests

Publication

5.31.17

Employee protests have become increasingly more prevalent in all industries, but specifically can be a problem for hotel employers. There have been immigration-related protests, gender-based protests, and general protests to fight for higher minimum wages. What should hoteliers know about protesting activities, and what can they do about it?

To read the full article, please visit California Hotel & Lodging Association.