

What Businesses Need to Know About Philadelphia's Ban on Pre-Employment Marijuana Testing

News
5.26.21

In their article published by the Philadelphia Business Journal, Kelsey Beerer and Luke McDaniels detail the city's new law banning pre-employment marijuana testing and outline steps employers should take for compliance. They note specifics of the law, including its exceptions for positions that require a commercial driver's license, law enforcement, and those that require the supervision of children, medical patients or other vulnerable individuals. For those employers who must comply, Kelsey and Luke recommend they get a head start on educating internal HR professionals and others involved in the hiring process.

To read the article visit Philadelphia Business Journal (subscription required).

Please reach out to our Media team for any news inquiries.

Related People

Kelsey E. Schiappacasse
Associate
610.230.2184
Email

Related Offices

Philadelphia