

Healthcare Employers Still Face Vaccine Challenges, Questions, and Misunderstandings

Publication

6.23.21

In a co-authored, bylined article printed in Medical Journal Houston, Kevin Troutman discusses some of the substantial challenges healthcare employers face when it comes to increasing the fully vaccinated population among healthcare workers. Kevin addresses some of the most common misinformation and misunderstandings about the COVID-19 vaccine, and he stresses the importance of employers dispelling myths and providing accurate information to help employees understand why getting vaccinated is the right choice among those responsible for the well-being of patients.
