

Labor Relations Co-Chair Interviews with The Wall Street Journal on Alabama Union Vote

News
8.03.21

In an interview with The Wall Street Journal, Steve Bernstein, co-chair of Fisher Phillips' Labor Relations practice, discusses what's at stake with a possible revote at an Amazon site in Bessemer, Ala. In April, workers there overwhelmingly shot down the union, but now an official with the NLRB is recommending a new election. "The reality is that Alabama is among those states that probably see lower incidences of unionization, and because of that unions have put a lot of attention in this part of the country, hoping they can turn the tide," Steve says.
