In an interview with E-Crypto News, Phillip Bauknight discusses the practical applications of cryptocurrency and blockchain technology in the employment context and highlights why the firm launched its new, innovative taskforce. Phil explains, “Because this technology isn’t going away anytime soon, there are many developing workplace law issues that are starting to spring up or will soon arise. The Taskforce’s mission is to stay on top of these developing issues and work to provide trusted guidance, counsel, and support to our clients as they work to navigate this rapidly developing and ever-changing landscape.” Later in the Q&A he highlights the resources the taskforce has already made available and what people can expect from it in the future.
