Overview

A passionate litigator, Ariella Onyeama has represented employers and insurance carriers in workers' compensation claims in California for more than a decade.

Ariella has significant first-chair case management experience and a stellar record of achieving successful decisions and settlements. Forging strong client relationships, she thoroughly learns her clients' businesses and identifies pathways to minimize risk and achieve optimal results. She has managed scores of cases from inception through trial and appeals before the California Workers' Compensation Board and California Court of Appeals.

Ariella joined Fisher Phillips after representing professional sports clubs, self-insured employers and insurers at a boutique law firm in Los Angeles.

She frequently presents to clients, brokers, and members of the bar on industry trends and best practices.
