Fisher Phillips, one of the country's preeminent labor and employment law firms representing employers, welcomes 19 attorneys in its Fall 2021 associate class. The attorneys join in eight offices across the country to expand Fisher Phillips' teams working on employers' most pressing workplace issues now and preparing them for the workplace of the future.

"Our 2021 class represents the next wave of legal talent at Fisher Phillips and they are joining us at a historic time for the firm and for our clients," said Roger Quillen, Chairman and Managing Partner of Fisher Phillips. "The new associates join an incredible nationwide team that has been helping employers across the country navigate a 'new normal' amid unprecedented workplace challenges. With this team, the new associates will have opportunities to work on some of the most complex and unique labor and employment matters. We often lean on our associates to keep us at the forefront of emerging topics, so this class will have the opportunity to help us pinpoint and guide our clients into a future where workplace issues are rapidly evolving and growing increasingly complex."
