Overview

Celine Ko is an attorney in the firm's Los Angeles office and has significant experience counseling and defending clients in labor and employment matters, including discrimination, harassment, wage and hour, employee terminations, and other employment disputes. Celine represents companies of all sizes, ranging from national companies to family business, within industries like real estate, healthcare, manufacturing, retail, insurance, waste management, property management, and finance, and is their go-to for all labor and employment litigation needs.

Celine joined Fisher Phillips after litigating employment, business, and healthcare cases for a San Francisco-based law firm. She had a decade long, multi-chaptered career before deciding to embark on an accelerated JD/MBA program. Before becoming an attorney, she was a financial consultant at an investment firm and a tax adviser to Fortune 500 companies at a Big Four accounting firm.
