

Pittsburgh Partner's 2021 Vaccine Litigation Prediction Mentioned in The American City Business Journals

News

2.04.22

Jay Glunt was mentioned in an article in The American City Business Journals that referenced both Fisher Phillips' COVID-19 Employment Litigation Tracker, and his prediction that "vaccines could be the next frontier in COVID-19 litigation."

His forecast proved true — more than 90% of vaccine-related cases have been filed since September, and with the Occupational Health and Safety Administration (OSHA) withdrawing its mandate-or-testing rule for large employers, employers could face more resistance from workers as they seek to implement mandates without the cover provided by the federal government.
