

ISO 45001 Certification Offers a Competitive Advantage, Say Fisher Phillips Attorneys

Publication

5.01.19

The eagerly anticipated ISO 45001 standard, developed with input from experts in more than 70 countries, provides a framework that helps businesses significantly enhance their safety and health performance, reduce workplace injuries and illnesses and dramatically improve employee productivity and quality.

Writing in the Spring 2019 edition of Goods, the Kentucky Association of Manufacturers magazine, Louisville partner Todd Logsdon and Atlanta partner Ed Foulke outline the benefits of using the ISO 45001 framework in manufacturing workplaces to improve corporate culture, boost cost-savings initiatives, increase worker productivity, enhance product quality and enhance reputation among clients and the community.
