

The Recorder Profiles Bill Stein's Arrival at Fisher Phillips

News

5/24/22

The Recorder profiled the arrival of William “Bill” Stein as an important component of Fisher Phillips’ plan to build a litigation powerhouse that defends clients in employment matters from case inception through trial in California and across the country. The article explains that the firm is in “growth mode” with a California litigation team that includes 120 attorneys in six offices.

In his conversation with The Recorder, Bill explained his reasons for coming to Fisher Phillips and said he was struck by the firm’s strategic growth plans to hire exceptional talent that is also the right cultural fit. He also described Fisher Phillips as “...one of the preeminent labor and employment law firms in the country” and added that he was impressed by the firm’s great presence in California and strong national platform.
