

Legal Media Profiles Fisher Phillips' New Chair John Polson

News

6.03.22

The Recorder and Law360 featured the news of Fisher Phillips' naming its new chair John Polson and announcing that Roger Quillen, who has seen the firm through significant growth over the past 23 years, will step into the role of Chair Emeritus.

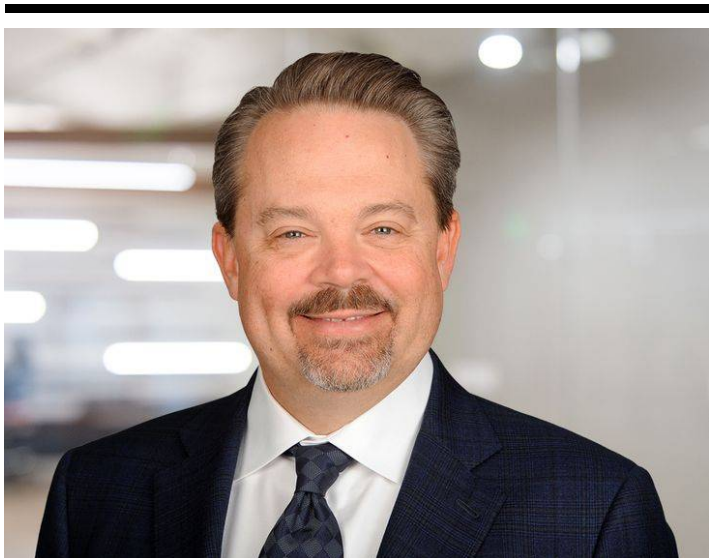

Both articles highlight the firm's historic move to name a chair located on the West Coast amid a boom in growth and opportunity in California. The profiles showcase the firm's consistent growth across the country, including in areas that will be hot for employers, including data security and privacy and workplace safety, and explore the opportunities and challenges ahead for the firm.

John shared: "Under Roger's leadership, we have evolved as a firm in so many ways, from growing our national footprint to making DE&I a strategic priority to investing in innovations that improved the way we practice law and serve clients. This has put Fisher Phillips on the leading edge of the future of workplace law."
