

Monkeypox in the Workplace

Event

9.20.22

12:00 PM — 12:45 PM EDT

Given the recent trauma we collectively experienced with COVID-19, you may be wondering what – if anything – you need to do about the monkeypox virus, which was recently declared a global health emergency. With local areas across the country declaring states of emergency, employers are officially on notice that this most recent public health crisis cannot be ignored. While monkeypox is not expected to reach pandemic levels, you will want to prepare for a potential outbreak by creating a written infectious disease policy and reviewing other key workplace policies.

Join one of the attorneys of our Workplace Safety Practice Group for this interactive webinar designed to enlighten you about the dangers you may now face and to provide you with a practical plan you can put into effect right away.

The firm is submitting this program for HRCI and SHRM credit.
