

Columbia Partner Tapped by SHRM To Discuss Federal Contractor Vaccine Mandates

News

1.18.23

A federal appeals court recently barred the federal government from requiring federal contractors in Kentucky, Ohio, and Tennessee to be vaccinated for COVID-19. It's the latest in a series of court decisions that have struck down the vaccination mandate in certain regions. In an interview with SHRM, Sheila Willis shares her insight on the series of court decisions that have struck down the vaccination mandate in certain regions and provides background on how we got here.
